After two years of planning, delays and construction, a new water well benefiting nine Christian families is now operational in a Christian village. The area was the site of large anti-Christian riots in which many Christians died and many others were injured. Those who refused to convert to Hinduism were kicked out of their villages, so they started a new village, where the new well is located. Praise God for providing the well and for continuing to work in the lives of these believers. Pray that the villagers will continue to grow in faith and be a light to the greater area. Pray also for seven believers who remain in prison in connection with the riots. Pray that their faith will inspire others to trust in Christ
